AUTOMOBILE OWNERS get what appears to be bad news in today's Star. They are told that in the opinion of the governor's committee it will require a 7-cent gasoline tax to resume payment on the state and district road debt, and save city street improvement districts from receivership. Furthermore, the three-quarters reduction in licenses for automobiles over four years old must be discontinued, but the 50 per cent reduction for all cars will be continued.

Bert Keith Gives Eligibility Rules for Jobs in CWA

First Chance Goes to Desirable Industrial Workers, Under Law

STATUS OF FARMER

Re-Employment Officer Asks Public Report Violations Direct

Bert Keith, federal re-employment officer for Hempstead county, in a statement Thursday defined those persons eligible for work-relief, took up the question of relief for share-croppers, and appealed for public co-operation in reporting irregularities direct to his office so they may be quickly corrected.

Mr. Keith said the Star: You stated yesterday that the officials of the CWA program in Hempstead county, who is qualified to work on CWA projects.

Bulletin No. 11 CWA issued Dec. 7, 1933, states: All able-bodied men and women receiving direct aid, or work aid, as of November 7th must be able to do the CWA projects before others are eligible. There shall be no division from this rule.

Now following this rule, we are instructed in Bulletin No. 4 CWA issued Nov. 4, 1933, that after the above men are placed, the industrial workers should have next consideration. See 5 of Bulletin No. 4 issued Nov. 24, 1933, reads as follows:

It is the intention of the National Recovery Act to place able-bodied men who are not employed, and who are qualified as skilled or unskilled labor to work as soon as possible.

The Share-Cropper The question arises about the farmer and share-cropper. It is not the intention to take farmers or share-croppers off the farms and place them in the position of industrial workers; therefore if a farmer or share-cropper has made and had his crop and has received compensation for his services as a farmer or share-cropper in a sufficient amount to maintain his family for a period, or until planting season, he should not be allowed to register. It must not be overlooked that the workers who are unemployed are depending entirely upon the industrial field, for his or her livelihood. Therefore, under these rulings it is the duty of the re-employment officer to furnish work to the unemployed industrial workers before farmers should be placed on the rolls, unless the industrial worker has had work recently and is in better position to maintain himself and family for a while, than the farmer who is in destitute circumstances.

Now the question arises about the veteran, and I have had numerous complaints from certain sections of the county along this line, largely due to a misunderstanding as to what is meant by the veterans having preference. I wish to state that the only preference given ex-service men in securing jobs on CWA projects is that all else being equal they should have the preference. I mean by this if they are equally qualified to do the work with a non-ex-service man, and their condition for living is equal with the other applicant for the work, and in all else, such as number of dependents, etc., are equal with the other applicant who is not a veteran, then in that event it is my duty to give the work to the ex-service man. This I have tried to do religiously.

One to a Family It is against the rules and instructions from the federal government for two persons in one family to be on the payrolls, any single person without dependents, or any person receiving compensation, or any member of a family receiving compensation for any other services rendered the government in a sufficient quantity to support and maintain the family, are not entitled to the benefits of this work. Parents who have children in the C. C. C. camp are not entitled to this work, unless by reason of the fact they are able to fill some specified place so that their service to the project is paramount to the fact that he, or she has a child in the C. C. C.

No person should be permitted to work on this program who has no dependents. Bulletin No. 1 issued Nov. 28, 1933, says:

In every instance where our investigators determine that any official in any county connected with the CWA permits an unemployed person to remain from their present

Whether our people will be honest enough to face the facts squarely at this time, is a question no man can answer. Personally, I believe they will. I believe the people generally are awake to the fact that the next session of congress must vote new taxes to meet the cost of the federal government—and I believe Arkansas citizens will be willing to absorb this emergency taxation at home long enough to get the whole debt refunding program under way.

X X X Governor Futrell sees the great danger of foreclosure of farm homes in the old road improvement districts unless refunding is accomplished. The old land-lien bonds of the districts must be surrendered by the bondholders and exchanged for new direct state bonds guaranteed not by the land but by gasoline tax revenues. To cover this, and the new Marineau bonds issued to pave our concrete highways since 1927, the subcommittee recommended increasing the gasoline tax from 6 to 6 1/2 cents. The governor's special committee, of which O. A. Graves of this city is a member, made another 1-2 cent increase for a total of 7 cents tax, their purpose being to save property-owners in city street improvement districts as well as in the country road districts. I believe every Hope citizen will endorse this. In one Hope city district I understand there are 20 or more homes to be lost if state aid is not forthcoming on the street which carries a highway through the district. What is fair for landowners in the country is fair for homeowners in town—and there can't be much quarrel over that.

X X X Elsewhere on today's front page you may read an interview with Mr. Graves. It is important to note where the extra 1/2 cent will go that the general committee has added to the subcommittee's recommendation. One-quarter cent goes to the county governments. The other quarter goes to city street districts. The entire half cent stays at home.

FOG BLINDS DRIVER

Elderly Man Turns Truck Into Direct Path of Approaching Train

CRESSENT CITY, Fla.—(AP)—Seven elementary school children were killed, another was reported to have died en route to a hospital, and at least 18 others were injured, many critically, when a freight train crashed into a school bus six miles south of here Thursday.

The dead are: William Smith, 12, Evelyn Smith, 9, Fredrick Smith, children of Mrs. Bennie Smith, a widow. Merle Smith, 6, reported to died en route to a hospital. Hazel McGrady, 10, Eddie McGrady, 10, of same family.

Elsie Gordon, 15, D. B. Niles, elderly driver of the bus, was injured but not critically. He had reached the end of his route when the crash came in a heavy fog. Engineer R. A. Howell said the bus driver made a left turn directly in front of the train at a crossing. The greatest confusion prevailed as hysterical and anxious parents hunted for their loved ones.

School Vacation Begins Wednesday

12-Day Holiday for Local Youngsters This Christmas

All Hope schools will dismiss next Wednesday for the Christmas vacation, it was announced.

Students will be given a 12-day vacation. School will reconvene Tuesday, January 2.

On the afternoon of dismissal Christmas programs will be presented at each school.

Mid-term examinations will be held the latter part of January.

Bankruptcy Costs Shown Too Heavy

23% of Gross Collections Swallowed by U. S. Court

LITTLE ROCK.—Creditors of 370 bankrupt firms and individuals whose cases were closed by the federal court referees for the Eastern District of Arkansas in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933, were paid $268,150.76, or 3.86 per cent of the claims totaling $6,942,447.20, it was shown in the annual report of the court clerk to the attorney general of the United States.

The 3.86 per cent of the claims paid last year compared to 4.03 cents paid in 1932; 3.8 cents paid in 1931; 6.61 cents in 1930 and 7.66 cents in 1929. No report could be found for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1928.

Gross collections from the cases closed last year were $473,446.95. From this total was deducted the expenses of operating businesses under control of the referees, and trustees, and expenses and fees of referees, trustees, marshals and attorneys. The remainder was distributed among the creditors.

An analysis of the figures shows that of the $473,446.95 gross collections, the creditors got 57 per cent, 20 per cent was disbursed in the conduct of business while 23 per cent went for "administrative expenses."

Under the head of "administrative expenses" were fees and expenses of lawyers, referees trustees and federal marshals together with an unexplained sum of $37,343.42 listed as "all other expenses of administration."

Administrative expenses last year were more than double the expenses in 1928, when creditors received almost twice as much on their claims. In 1928 administrative expenses were $50,415.31, and the creditors received $320,962.12, or 7.66 per cent of claims of $4,187,651.67.

The 1928 report listed no funds disbursed for the conduct of businesses under control of the referees, and it was believed that in this year, such disbursements were charged directly against administrative expenses.

British Agreement Discredited—Rainey for Free Silver

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Morgenthau again denied Thursday reports of negotiations for a currency stabilization agreement with Great Britain shortly after the government repeated the price of $34.01 an ounce for gold for the 12th successive day.

Asked specifically about a statement by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, that negotiations with the Bank of England were heading toward stabilization of the dollar at 62 cents of the gold value, Morgenthau said he did not know anything about it.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Speaker Rainey Thursday declared himself for free coinage of silver and said if President Roosevelt proposed such a step at the coming session it would "go through the house like it was greased."

Proposed 7-Cent Tax Would Save Street Districts

O. A. Graves Explains Latest Amendment by Governor's Committee

PAY ROUTE-STREET

100 Per Cent Relief for Actual Highway Street—Not Whole District

Amending of the proposed Arkansas highway debt refunding agreement to throw out municipal improvement district obligations as well as the state debt, was obtained last Tuesday at an executive meeting of the Governor's Special Bond Refunding Committee in Little Rock. The Star learned Thursday in an interview with O. A. Graves, Hope member of the committee.

It was Mr. Graves who, since the sub-committee had recommended increasing the gasoline tax from 6 to 6 1/2 cents, without making specific provision for city street improvement districts containing state highway routes, urged that the governor's committee add still another 1/2 cent tax, making 7 cents, "and clean up the whole controversy."

The refunding committee accepted Mr. Graves' view, and amended the subcommittee's recommendation. Original Provision The subcommittee had voted to raise the state gasoline tax from 6 to 6 1/2 cents, with the following division: State 5 3/4 cents, provisionally taking care of municipal improvement districts. Counties 3/4 cent.

The Amendment With the amendment by the general refunding committee, the total tax would stand at 7 cents, divided as follows: State 5 3/4 cents, with some provision for municipal districts. Counties 1 cent. Municipal districts specifically 1-4 cent.

Mr. Graves said the subcommittee estimated the provision out of the state's 5 3/4-cent share would give the municipal districts $74,824 a year, and the extra quarter cent added by the amendment would yield an additional $250,000—saving the city districts from the shadow of receivership.

The "100 Per Cent" Clause Mr. Graves said there was a misunderstanding in some quarters as to the exact nature of the proposed state aid for city districts.

Under Acts 8 and 85 the state guaranteed to pay half the cost of paving highway routes through city street improvement districts.

Then Act 248—the Norfolk act—was adopted, and this came to be construed as authorizing state certificates for not only all of the highway street paving, but all of the indebtedness of any district through which a state highway passed.

As a compromise, Mr. Graves said, it is proposed that the state pay all the cost of any city street which carries a state highway through town—but not all the indebtedness of the district, as was criticized under the Norfolk Act No. 248.

Up to Brokers LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Futrell's decision to call a special legislative session to enact a new refunding plan for the state highway debt, from St. Louis investment dealers as to whether they could reasonably assure the state that its proposed refunding plan would be acceptable to holders of road improvement district bonds.

The governor said he was convinced that the direct bondholders (Marineau bonds) take notes issued since 1927—would accept, but that he would await the decision of the St. Louis dealers, whose representatives are in session Thursday.

The governor wants a pledge from the St. Louis dealers that they will recommend the new refunding plan to those who purchased the road district bonds from them.

Bond Market Improves NEW YORK.—(AP)—State of Arkansas highway bonds advanced sharply in the counter market here Wednesday as a result of the progress toward readjusting the state's debt.

CHAPTER FOUR

Life may begin at 40 for some people, but for me it began at 13, the year I entered boarding school.

Ever since Walker and Earle, a couple of years before, had gone to St. Alban's at Seacombe, I had begged to go away to school.

So mother and dad, staunch believers in the teach-your-children-to-meet-life-for-themselves theory, promised that as soon as I finished eight grade at Oak Park.

I might go to St. Katharine's, an Episcopal school at Davenport, Ia., of which they highly approved.

I finished at Oak Park late in June, 1921, and the following fall I entered Davenport.

The night before I left I couldn't sleep, so excited was I, staring through the shade favorite delicacy, with all the fixings. It included even frilly paper napkins with turkeys closing pumpkins across them for the girls who attended the "spread" in my room that evening.

Christmas that year was very thrilling. From the moment that mother and Mary met me at the La Salle street station until I started back, my life was an unbroken round of Christmas trees and family dinners and young people's parties.

Usually our house was a beehive of industry. Between her family, her practice and the clubs and civic groups with which she was affiliated, mother always was busy.

Bliss to Mary That first holiday home was made more memorable by Mary's changed attitude. Until I went away to school, we had been more like twins than adopted sisters. We dressed alike, did the same things, almost thought alike.

But the restrained, almost bored manner in which I had greeted her upon my return definitely had put her in the place of younger sister.

"You seem so blasé," she complimented me.

Guardsmen Come From Behind, Win

Locals Defeat Stamps Y. M. C. A. in Season's Opener Here

Overtaking a 12-point lead in the last half with excellent floor work and accurate goal tossing, the Hope National Guard basketball team downed the Y. M. C. A. Stamps cagers here Wednesday night, 38 to 33.

It was the opening game of the season for the soldiers. The game was played in the high school gymnasium, and attracted a fair sized crowd.

The half ended with the visitors out in the lead, 23 to 11. The Guards came back strong, scoring 27 points to win. The Guard team looped six free throws out of nine attempts. Stamps scored seven out of 17.

Garret and Pate were high-point men for the Guards, the former scoring 15. Pate hitting the basket for 12 points. McClelland and Wilson for Stamps played well, scoring most of the visitor's points. Floor work of Snell and Patterson for the locals stood out.

A return game will be played at Stamps Monday night.

Jim Pickren, former University of Arkansas star who was scheduled in the Stamps lineup, failed to appear.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Sugar Coating Will Sinear Inflation, It Any... Navy Chief Rules That Kizes Can Be Wicked. Even Milk Is Bootlegged. Statistics Censor Looks on Dark Side C. C. C. Is Army "Nest Egg."

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Currency inflation, if any, will come sugar-coated. Such few presidential advisers as admit the possibility discuss only one method of issuing additional paper money.

When the dollar is devalued by reducing its gold content and the price of gold finally is fixed, the dollar value of our reserves will be increased correspondingly.

If the dollar is revalued at 50 cents, the gold in Federal Reserve Banks, now valued at $3,600,000,000, would become worth $7,200,000,000. And the treasury's present gold supply would be worth $1,800,000,000 instead of only $700,000,000.

The government might or might not take the profit, up to $4,200,000,000, and spend it in currency. There's every reason to believe that Prof. George F. Warren, Roosevelt's chief monetary adviser, proposes that it do just that.

There'll be a hot argument as to whether such a course would be "inflation." One high authority says it would be "summar to inflation."

It was done in France and Italy when the franc and lira were devalued and the proceeds used to buy government securities.

The profit also might be applied to federal expenditures.

Sweet, But Wicked
Walter, Mustached Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson seldom is asked for expert opinion on kisses. But comment was demanded from him when a Navy Academy midshipman was sent to the brig for kissing his sweetie goodby in an "unseemly manner"—that is, too long and too ardently. Uncle Claude delivered this dictum:

"Of course a kiss can be an offense if it is bestowed in a certain way. It all depends on how it's done."

Milk "Bootlegged"
Milk and liquor are altogether different fluids. But they present the same problem in that you can put the price so high that boot-legging becomes profitable. AAA officials admit they found that out at the recent Chicago milk agreement hearing. They're disturbed.

Legal price of milk in Chicago is 11 cents a quart. But hundreds of small stores are selling it at 9 and 9 cents, below the code price, mostly to poor people. The problem of enforcement puzzles the AAA.

But the government has aid from the gangsters, who are in the milk racket as well as the booze racket. Low-price independents are terrorized and find their stores wrecked.

Looks On Dark Side
Winfield Riefler, sometimes called the administration's official "censor" because, as chairman of the Central Statistical Board, he is required to pass on all interpretations of statistics, is no Pollyanna.

Sometimes he leans over backward when an enthusiastic official wants to issue an optimistic interpretation. For instance, when automobile sales for October showed a 103 per cent increase over October, 1932, and automobile installment sales increased 123 per cent, it seemed obvious that the consumers were more confident and willing to make more commitments. But Riefler blue-penciled that suggestion.

"Let the newspapers figure it out for themselves," he said.

"Nest Egg" for Army
High army officers will seek to make the Citizens' Conservation Corps permanent, under War Department control. They regard that body of 275,000 men as a nice little "nest egg" against emergencies.

The Sport Will Turn
"It doesn't pay to be a good sport," moralizes the Concordia Weather Bear. "If there are any dirty deals, let the good sport get them. He takes it on the chin. It's all right to be a good sport most of the time, but it pays to have just enough meanness about you to keep people treating you well."

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

One of the greatest months of the year for child training is December. Children are "mellow" now, we might say. It isn't so much that they are pussypoof because they are afraid to be bad, as the fact that every one of us is inclined to be more accessible when something nice is ahead.

And by the way, don't hold that old bludgeon of Santa's wrath over a child if he misbehaves. Do not put the poor old fellow in wrong. What kind of a god fairy is it nayhow who demands retribution?

Perhaps the point isn't terribly important, but it just happened one time that I saw an unfortunate result of four weeks of such threats. A little girl's mother and grandmother kept at her all month. On Christmas her father, dressed as Santa Claus, walked in and she hid in a closet. She was shaking with terror.

Lessons in December
A dozen little lessons can be accentuated in December, in the advance glow of the happy sunrise.

Kindness first of all. Billy, perhaps, is a willful boy, selfish and casual in his treatment of other children. He hasn't listened to entreaties. He has little respect for law. A direct command rolls off him like a marble off a ball.

Now, of course, we can say, "Billy, behave yourself. Give Mable her candy right away or Santa Claus will leave your stocking hanging empty on Christmas morning."

That might straighten Billy out, of course, but there is nothing gained. After Christmas there won't be any Santa to hold up as a bugaboo.

It can be done this way. "Billy, come here a minute. Listen to this story. Once there was a Little Boy whose birthday we always remember. He lived his whole life being kind to other people. Finally He gave up His life, too, for other people. Never once was He selfish. What was the use of all of it if we, too, cannot learn to think of others before ourselves, or at least be kind to them? Don't you think you could remember that?"

Time for Thoughtfulness
I think you'll find that Billy will listen. Tell him it is the time when people should be more generous, more thoughtful, more everything, than at any other time of the year.

This is constructive as well as timely, because as I said, the need is likely to fall on fertile ground now. Happiness and expectancy are in the air. Billy and all his kind are more reachable at the moment.

December is a time for real beginnings, not January. The sunrise of Christmas sheds its soft light for weeks ahead, but it sets quickly on Christmas night. Older people sometimes react through a sense of gratitude but children very seldom. The openness to their hearts and minds is expectancy. Just a little difference in the psychology of age and youth.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF
By Alicia Hart

If you want your Christmas gifts to be truly personal place beauty preparations at the head of the list.

For instance, one smart little box contains a jar of cleansing cream, tissue cream and a bottle of skin tonic. Unless her complexion needs something very special, the box contains just about everything a girl will need for the rest of the winter.

More elaborate kits, of course, are equipped with several creams and lotions, including an astringent, eye creams and all sorts of make-up.

Both ensemble outfits are appreciated by girls who get them for Christmas. Some have bath powder, bath balls and soap. Others have bath oil instead of salts. A really luxurious present would be a complete bathroom ensemble including all the things a woman would use in and after her bath.

Perfume and toilet water are apparent on most well-planned Christmas lists. If you know her favorite perfume, give her some of that. If not, everybody likes lavender toilet water or cologne. It is an excellent idea to have bath powder, soap, cologne and perfume match. Such an ensemble would be a really glamorous present.

Jots Around Shover

Quite a number of folks have had the misfortune of losing their meat, which had been butchered during the cool spell of weather in November and which was of short duration.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Darwin have been spending a few days recently looking for a location near Morrilton, Ark. We regret to lose these good people from our midst.

Milton Caudle and family expect to move to the place vacated by Mr. Darwin.

We understand that our old time friends and neighbors, O. J. Phillips and family, of Delight, Ark., will move to the Shover Springs vicinity in the near future. Welcome home friends.

Mrs. Adell Sanford and children were Saturday visitors at the A. A. Rogers home in Shover.

Several men from this vicinity are now employed on the CWA force in and near Hope.

Harold Sanford and family were Sunday evening visitors at the Roy Rogers home in Shover.

Hemel and Glendon Mitchell spent Sunday afternoon with Harvard Sanford.

Clint Martin started last Thursday to go to his home in Colorado Springs, Colo. He had spent several months here attending to his farming and other interests.

Mrs. Nellie Leach and Mrs. Adell Sanford and children were Monday visitors at H. B. Sanford's.

Jim and Curtis Karber and Melvin Jordan and family were Sunday visitors at the George Jordan home.

Mr. and Mrs. Kernet Mitchell and family have moved to the Bodewau vicinity.

Mrs. H. B. Sanford spent a part of last week with her daughter, Mrs. Dottie Bearden.

Those that spent a part of the day at the Henry Bearden home Sunday, were: Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson, Barto Bearden and mother, Mrs. H. B. Sanford and Allen Walker. Mr. Bearden has been ailing for sometime, but enjoys being able to be up and about the place in good weather.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Mildred Johnson and Luther Owen came as a surprise to their many friends. Mrs. Owen went last week to join her husband in Illinois, where he is finishing a course in aviation. Mrs. Owen is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson of near Shover Springs and Mr. Owen is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Walker, who for several years resided in this vicinity. We wish for them a long and successful life.

Mrs. Iteco Gray is spending a few days with relatives in Hope.

Louise and Donnie Dell Karber were Saturday callers at George Jordans.

Maggie Jordan spent Saturday night with her brother Melvin and family.

Jeff Wright and family spent Sunday with his brother, Ed Wright and wife at Rocky Mount.

Harmon B. Sanford of this place received the sad news from their old home in Plymouth, Ill., that his brother, William Sanford, had passed away, on December 5. Mr. Sanford is the remaining one of three brothers. His brothers, George and William, now deceased, had visited him here several years ago and enjoyed their short visit the south very much. Their passing leaves a sadness to the Sanford family here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethel O'Steen spent Saturday night with her mother, Mrs. A. L. Caudle of Bright Star.

R. S. May and Miss Bama and Audrey Ross spent Sunday with Clarence Sparks and family.

Ben May spent Saturday night with Benie Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee England of Shover Springs spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Collier.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Mobley of Lusana spent Saturday night with Paul Mobley and family.

Mrs. Dora Jackson spent Sunday with Mrs. Charlie Williams.

Mrs. Walter Lee Allen spent Saturday with Mrs. Benie Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ross spent Sunday with Mrs. Walter Lee Allen.

Miss Catherine Lee spent Tuesday with Miss Hattie Jackson.

Alin, Leonard and Margie Sanders spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. Lester Mullens.

Mrs. Ethel O'Steen and Mrs. Leo Collier entertained Friday afternoon, at the home of the former, with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Walter Lee Allen. Games were enjoyed throughout the afternoon with Miss Catherine Ross as winner. A decorated wagon bearing the gifts was brought in by little Miss Deam Collier. After the gifts had been delivered to the honoree the hostess served a fruit dish.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou BROOKMAN
DAILY PRESS SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DAVID BANNISTER undertakes to find out who killed
TRACY KING, orchestra leader,
in his hotel apartment, Bannister is an author and former newspaper man. He works on the murder case with GAINES, state
reporter on the Post.

Among those suspected are SUBJECT FRANK, blond and pretty and known to have visited
KING shortly before his death.
HERMAN SCURIA, who wrote
KING a threatening letter, and JOE PARROTT, down-and-out vandalistic actor. It is also known that MELVINA HOLLIESTER, middle-aged spinster, had quarreled with KING recently.

AL DRUGAN, friend of KING's,
is found dead in a wrecked automobile.
Bannister persuades the police chief to let Juliet come to his apartment, ostensibly as a guest, on the theory that if the girl believes herself free they can learn more about her.

Parrott is located in St. Louis and a detective is sent to bring him to Tremont. Bannister goes out the old wedding picture he found in KING's bedroom, wraps
it, addresses it and drops it in a mail box.

NOW ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI
BANNISTER met GAINES in the corridor outside the detectives' quarters. He asked, "Are they here yet?"

"Got here 20 minutes ago," GAINES told him. "I was looking for you. McNeal's going to let us know as soon as we can see him."
They went into the detective bureau office. Fleming was there and another reporter. Fleming said, "I hope this isn't going to take very long. I've got to get away from here."

A buzzer sounded then and the man at the desk arose. He went to the door of McNeal's office and a moment later returned.

"You can go in now," he said,
motioning with his head. "The four newspaper men filed into the adjoining room."

Two men stood almost in the center of the room. One of them was slender with stooped shoulders. He had dark eyes that were round and very bright, like small, shining buttons. The man's face was sallow and lined. There was something about the face that suggested youth, yet he might have been young. Anywhere from 25 to 40.

His clothing hung loosely and was wrinkled. One arm he kept close to his side. There was a band about his wrist, fastened by a chain to the wrist of the man who stood beside him.

McNeal said, "Well, Parrott, here are some newspaper men. I see you. Boys, this is Joe Parrott."

The man with the stooped shoulders said nothing. His sullen lips twitched faintly.

GAINES stepped forward. "How're
you," he said easily. "My name's GAINES—of the Post. Have a cigarette?"

Parrott accepted the cigarette, held
it to the lighted match that GAINES provided. "Thanks," he said, but there was no gratitude in his expression.

"Won't you tell us all about it?"
GAINES went on.

"I ain't got nothin' to say," the words were muttered, half-in-audible.

"Oh, but you must have! You're in a jam here and we want your side of the story."

"I ain't got nothin' to say!"
Parrott repeated belligerently, "except that I didn't do nothin'.

They've got no right to keep me here. They got no right to do it!"

"Well, then," said GAINES, "let's hear about it."

But that, apparently, was not Parrott's idea. His lips set in their sullen line again and did not open.

THE room was quiet for several moments. Then Fleming ventured a question. "Do you admit you were here in Tremont a week ago, the night Tracy King was murdered?" he asked.

"Still no answer,"
"Well," said McNeal from his desk, "you've seen him, boys, I guess there's no use wasting any more time. Take him back to his cell, Joe."

The man whose wrist was attached to Parrott's turned, "Put out that cigarette," he ordered.

Parrott dropped the cigarette to the floor and GAINES stepped forward, crushing it under his heel.

"So long," he said cheerily.

It was just before Parrott reached the door that he looked back. His eyes were on GAINES and Fleming. "Listen, you wise guys!" he said, "I'll tell you this much. They ain't goin' to keep me here! I got friends, see?"

"Ain't goin' to stay in no jail, I got friends that will get me out of here. I ain't done nothin', and they can't prove nothin' and I ain't goin' to stay here!"

The detective had his hand on the door and with a jerk opened
it. "That'll do," he said. "Come on, step on it."

Then the door swung shut.
GAINES gave a low whistle.
"Sweet customer," he said to Mc-Neal. "Sweet, gentle customer!"

"We're used to them," the captain growled. His voice sounded weary.

"What's the dope on him?"
Fleming wanted to know.

"We're holding him," McNeal told them, "for questioning. We know he was here the night Tracy King was killed. At least we know he was here at 8 o'clock that night. I've got witnesses to prove
it. We've got the stenographic record of Morgan's story that Parrott had made trouble for KING.
We've also got something else I'd rather not say anything about just now."

THE reporters urged but it was of no avail. McNeal refused to say any more. Bannister noticed again how tired the detective captain looked. Well, a strain such as he had been under for the past week was enough to make anyone look that way.

"Drop in again late this afternoon," McNeal told them in parting. "I may have something for you."

"A confession?" GAINES's grin
as he said it, was impish. Three times McNeal had predicted a confession and each prediction had failed.

"No, not a confession. Now get out of here!"

Bannister left the building and walked across town. He stopped at the Evening Post office and chatted for half an hour with Jim Paxton. They talked about the murder and affairs at Washington and the fall of boxing, and then Bannister departed.

He ran into two friends he had known years before and had to do some quick thinking to avoid a dinner invitation. It was nearly too hard a life for my little girl."

Having settled my future, I couldn't wait to accomplish it. Because St.
Katharine's had a five-year high school course, I transferred the next year to the Chicago Latin School, which offered a four-year course.

There I was when I went to my first dance—a formal school affair, with men in tuxedos and an orchestra behind palms at the Drake Hotel.

"Thrilled by Dance Frolic"

A boy who lived up the street from our house was my escort. I fear he made less of an impression on me than the dress I wore. After all, he was an old family friend, while my dress, a elaborate affair of pastel chi-ron and lace that touched the floor in back and had the suspicion of a bustle, was my first grown-up party dress.

When I got home from the dance mother was awake. She was always like that, waiting up to talk things over. Yet she seldom missed eating

a 7 o'clock breakfast with her children.

Fitting herself out was second nature to mother. She hated the movies.
Yet every Friday night, my first year home from boarding school, she would go with me to our neighborhood picture house.

First, she knew I was homesick for Mary, now at St. Katharine's. And after that, she suspected, truly, that was nursing a secret infatuation for the freckled boy who played the violin
in the orchestra.

No Luck in Romance

That infatuation got me nowhere.
It was not until the following summer, when I was taking a course in physics at Lewis Institute, that I had my first real date.

It was with a boy in my class, a romantic (in my eyes) youth some five years older than I and almost that many inches shorter.

"What are you going to do tonight?"
he asked me one day. "Say we do a waltz!"

I was too thrilled to answer at first.
Then I told him: "I'll have to ask mother."

That evening, as I was pressing out my linen riding breeches, he telephoned. As I talked, the aroma of burning linen floated past my nostrils and, panicky, I remembered that, in my excitement to get to the phone, I had left the iron on my knickers.

But did I care? That evening's excursion to a Loop movie house and the ride home afterwards on top the bus
more than compensated.

LIQUIDITY

From regular sources of income, without the sale of any asset, the Northwestern National Life Insurance Company has met unprecedented demands for policy loans and other policy obligations, and has in addition improved its already liquid position during 1933, increasing its holdings of CASH and U. S. GOVERNMENT BONDS from 10.3 per cent of its total assets on December 31st last to 15.2 per cent as of September 30th.

on Tuesday, sold above $50 and around closing time were quoted $48 bid, $51 asked.

Banking interests here were cheered
by the announcement from Little Rock
that Governor Futrell's bond refunding committee would be asked to recommend an immediate special session of the legislature to approve plans for meeting the state's bonded
and accrued debt if $155,374,180.

Investment concerns were especially concerned with any arrangements which may be made to provide for the $91,500,000 of the state's highway and oil bridge bonds, interest on which has been due since the first of the year.

Dislikes 7-Cent Tax

LITTLE ROCK—Governor Futrell,
following his return to Little Rock late Wednesday called a conference of advisors to study the highway debt refunding proposal that was approved Tuesday at a joint session of the governor's Citizens Committee and the special Legislative Committee on refinancing.

The committee recommended that Governor Futrell call the legislature to meet in special session Monday to enact a law embodying the committee's suggestions for refunding the state road debt of approximately $155,000,000.

The special committee that was appointed Tuesday to draft a bill began work and reported that satisfactory progress had been made, but that the work would not be completed before Saturday.

Governor Futrell said that he will not know before Friday or Saturday
whether he will call the special session for Monday.

He said he desires additional assurance that the proposed refunding plan will be accepted by sufficient holders
of road district bonds to make the program successful and to remove possibility that bondholders will resort to suits against road districts to enforce payments of a minority of the bonds
that might not be turned in to be refunded.

The governor said he personally objects to the proposal to increase the gasoline tax to seven cents and that he believes the full committee "did not take a step in the right direction" by modifying the original proposal submitted by the subcommittee.

position, and assists them in getting on the CWA through pull, friendship or influence in any manner,
that official will be immediately dismissed from further duties without notice.

I want it thoroughly understood that this office does not select the foreman, sub-foreman, gravel checkers, or time-keepers on any projects,
and if anyone is employed in this capacity who should not be on the payroll, I hope you can make it clear to the public that I should not be criticized.

The Procedure

Before any large number of men are assisted to duty on any project
in this county, I select three men living in the community where the project is located, to meet with me for the purpose of determining who is entitled to the work as laid down by the government rulings. These men are representative men who enjoy the confidence of the entire citizenship of Hempstead county and are men who do not expect to receive a job, or other remuneration from the project, but who have the interest of the community at heart and desire to see the CWA program carried out
as it was intended by our President.

These three men and myself take the registration cards of the people in the territory covered by the project,
and we go over them carefully, classifying the registrants in classes 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5. Class 1, is the class of people who need immediate help,
which includes persons from the RFC rolls. It is mandatory that I place them first. Then come other people in the community who are in the same condition for living as the RFC workers. In every instance, we find people in who are classified as needing immediate help than we can possibly place. Recently my committee met with me to classify the labor on a project, and this project was entitled, as it projects of our 711 men allowed for Hempstead county, 54 men and this committee declared that among the people registered in the vicinity of this project, there were 73 desperate cases. This condition will exist and does exist in every community where a project has been opened, therefore you can clearly see that the quota of 711 men will not be like reach the desperate cases we have in Hempstead county. There will be no other way in the world
to reach them, except by placing them
on direct aid, unless we get our present ruling changed, or have the privilege of working say, 3 or 5 days and be off 3 or 5 days, or have our quota
for Hempstead county raised to a sufficient number to take care of them.

Should Report Cases

I wish to state that this office is doing its very best to let this work go to the men the government intended for it to reach first. We daily find that we are making mistakes, but we are also daily correcting these mistakes. I wish to state that if anything is going contrary to this ruling in placing this labor, it will have my immediate attention if the irregularity is called to my attention. I will put to work on taking off the work, any persons who would

Magnolia to Pick Queen of Beauty

Muleriders Sponsors Annual Contest at A. & M. College
MAGNOLIA, Ark.—Queen of Beauty at Magnolia A. and M. College will be announced at the annual Stunt Night Thursday night according to Elizabeth Hughes, of New Boston, Texas, editor of the Mulerider, which is sponsoring the entertainment. The selection of the beauty will be made by J. H. Field, a nationally known photographer who lives at Fayetteville, for a group of ten pictures selected by the student body. Entertainment for the program will be furnished by the organizations of the campus presenting 7 minute stunts in competition. The winner will receive a free page in the annual which is worth $15.

Ideas for Christmas

Gifts From Tin are Smart and Easy Made

By JULIA BLANSHARD

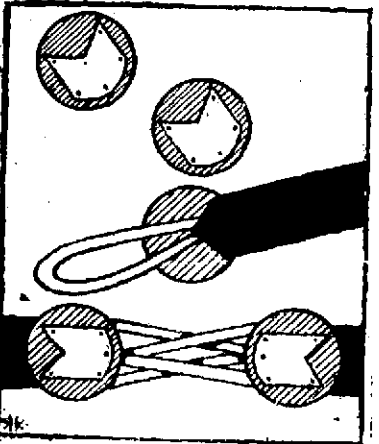

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK—It's smart this year to make gifts out of tin cans. And of course it costs nothing.

All you need are some large tin cans (the kind that pumpkins, apricots, tomatoes or other food comes in), gloves to protect your hands, a pair of pliers and sturdy shears and some short nails. The cans should be four inches in diameter, for the bigger gifts, at least.

A discarded cigar box becomes a snappy jewel case, decorative cigarette box or small sewing kit when treated to a tin applique, the way the Camp Fire Girls do it.

Cigarette Box
Sun and air the cigar box thorough.

It's hot in the hut, when you're buttoned in HANES!

KIDDING? You know we are. But we're serious when we say that you'll have the most comfortable Winter of your life, if you get into HANES Wonderwear! It's knit into heavy, smooth ribs with plenty of warm, soft fluff inside. But you won't feel padded and stuffy. For HANES fits closely and "gives" freely with every stretch and strain—no droops or lumps!

When you buy HANES, tell your right size. For the cloth is knit and cut right up to the measure—no chiseling or skimping! That's why HANES always fits without gripping or ripping. You won't think you're in a strait-jacket! Button-holes, cuffs, and seams are sewed to last the life of the fabric. Stock-up now for a warm Winter with HANES Wonderwear. P. H. Hanes Knitting Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

There are all sorts and sizes of HANES—shirts and drawers as well as union suits. The Heavy-weight Champion is illustrated.

ly, before starting, to kill the tobacco odor. You can paint it black or red or leave it natural wood. Empty and rinse out a tin can, cut off the top and bottom with one of these screw-openers that leaves smooth edges, cut down the side of the can and spread out the metal to sheet form.

For your decorative design, you can cut in initials or any other motif you want. If you use the T's as illustrated, to make them perfect, then outline them into the tin by scratching with a pin-point. Cut carefully, so they will look neat. When the pieces are cut, lay them on the box for trial, and lightly mark the place they are to go. To fasten them on, take common pins and cut off a quarter of an inch. Make guide holes through the tin by using fine nails. Then put the pins in the guide holes and hammer them in.

Belt Fastening
To make the belt-fastening, use button molds which have shanks on the back by which to sew them on. For the decorative tin motif, draw a paper design either like the one indicated in the sketch or draw your own cut out monogram or initial pattern. When your design suits you and fits your buttons, trace it on the sheet of tin, cut carefully and tack onto the better molds. Two buttons, with frog cross-fastenings, make a very neat belt buckle.

Reindeer
To make the reindeer, cut a flat paper pattern, enlarging the one indicated. Bend your paper pattern, to make sure it is right, before you cut it out of tin. Use your pliers to twist his antlers, to curl his nostrils, bend down the sides of his neck and curl up his feet. If you don't like reindeer, you can cut your own animal design easily.

The candle holder is made from the bottom of a big tin can that held apricots. Cut a one-inch strip from the top clear down the side to within three-quarters of an inch of the bottom. From this, cut around the can, leaving this three-quarter cuff standing. Roll the long strip towards the center to make a strong, watch-spring handle for your candlestick.

Candle Holder
Getting the little cup that holds the candle to stay put is the only problem of this gift. You cut a strip of the left-over tin 1 1/2 inches wide and 3/4 inch long and notch the lower edge deeply enough so that the notches, pressed through holes you cut in the bottom can be hammered back flat against the tin securely. Be sure that each end of the little strip for the cup has a deep notch. Overlap these two, pass them through bottom slit and hammer them against the tin and your candle will be secure.
If you want to be very dresy, you can puncture or hammer designs into any of these tin gifts.

Child With Cold Should Be Kept In

Dr. Fishbein Cautions Against Spreading of Infection

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. Winter calls upon you, as a parent, to protect your child against all sources of colds, and protect other children against your child when he happens to have a cold.

Ordinarily, winter is just about as healthful a season as any other, if you know how to practice the simple rules of hygiene and exercise common sense in their application. You know, of course, that exposure may harm the human body and you can, in most cases, guard against it. A diet sufficiently rich in calories will provide warmth for the body, which is more necessary in winter than in summer.

You know, also, that the common cold is more frequent in winter than in summer. That's because of artificial heating, wrong clothing, and other physical factors which can be brought under control. We do not know definitely the chief cause of a cold. It is, no doubt, a germ not yet found. But we do know that contributing factors include the presence of someone who has a cold, and a reduction in general resistance of the body which permits germs to get in their vicious work.

The child in school is exposed constantly to meetings with people who have colds and who do not worry much about distributing them to others. Responsibility of eliminating such children rests on school teachers, as well as on school nurses and school

Johnson and His Right Hand Woman

She "knows more about the NRA and the Recovery Act than most anybody around here." That's what General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, said when a printed story recently emphasized that Miss Frances Robinson, his assistant, was receiving a salary of $5,780—some $200 less than his own. They are shown at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, where Johnson, in an address before the National Association of Manufacturers, struck out at critics of the NRA and the President's monetary policies.

physicians. The greatest responsibility, however, rests upon you, the parent, who should not permit your child to go to school if he has a cold. In addition to the contacts made in school, the child is likely to be exposed in crowded vehicles and motion picture houses. The best care that can be given to a child under such circumstances is to put him to bed until he is well enough to get about.

Enough has been said about consumption of proper food and proper elimination for good hygiene, to make parents realize that, in times of excessive strain on the body, these factors are especially important. There is a tendency in winter either to take too little exercise or too much. Some parents coddle their children in winter so that the child spends all his time indoors. Other parents, with a view to hardening the child, insist on his shoveling snow and messing about in the dampness. Here again reason is the right attitude. A suitable amount of outdoor air, with the surety that the child is well covered, that he does not remain wet out in the cold, is a well worth while stimulus to lungs and circulation.

For those children who have frequent colds, and especially for those with infection in the sinuses, swimming should be forbidden in the winter in any kind of indoor pool.

Potato Caramel Cake Is Good to Keep in Hand During the Holiday Season
By SISTER MARY

NEA Service Staff Writer
If you are looking for a particularly nice and delicious cake to have on hand during the holiday season, potato caramel cake will prove satisfactory.

If, on the other hand, you want an inexpensive cake that is not rich with butter and eggs but is nevertheless fruity and delectable, apple sauce will meet your needs.

Both these cakes keep excellently and are even better several days after

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Stewed dried figs with lemon, cereal, cream, French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.
Luncheon: Browned rice, lettuce sandwiches, apple sauce cake with whipped cream, milk, tea.
Dinner: Stuffed slice of baked ham, baked sweet potatoes and apples, jellied cheese and pineapple salad, potato caramel cake, mint tea, milk, coffee. This is a splendid informal company supper menu.

Serve a tray of assorted relishes and some delicious hot rolls, such as Philadelphia cinnamon buns, with the main course.)

baking than when fresh. Cut in slices and served with whipped cream, they can be used as puddings for acceptable desserts.

Potato Caramel Cake

Four eggs, 2 cups light brown sugar, 2/3 cup butter, 2 cups flour, 1/2 cup sweet milk, 1 cup hot mashed potatoes, 1 cup grated chocolate, 1 cup nut meats, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

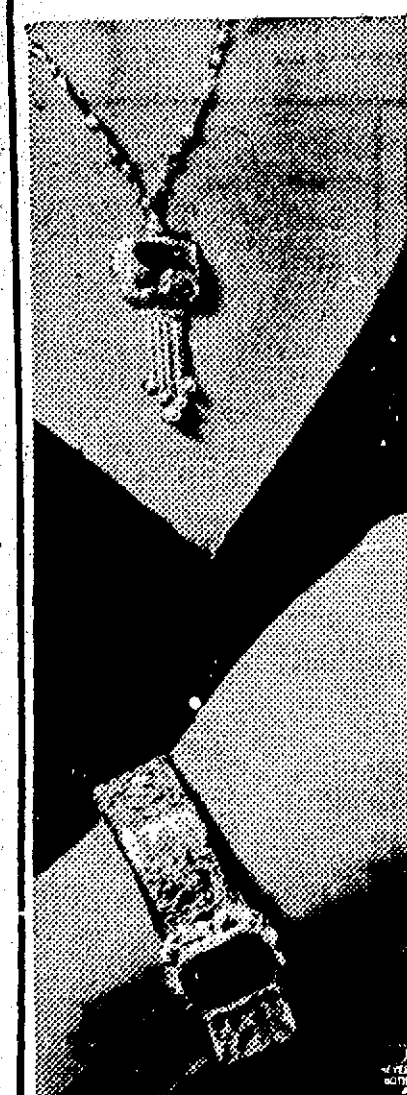

Cream butter and sugar. Half butter and half lard or any other shortening can be substituted for the entire amount of butter. Add 1/2 cup sifted flour to creamed mixture. Beat well and add yolks of eggs well beaten. Melt chocolate over hot water and add to hot mashed potatoes, beating in milk. Add to first mixture. Mix and sift remaining flour, baking powder, salt and spices. Add with nuts to first mixture. Stir just enough to mix smooth. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into a large oiled and floured cake pan with a chimney and bake one hour in a moderate oven, 350 to 375 degrees F. Cover with white fudge frosting and decorations.

The Worst Roundup

The six-day bikers are well warmed up... for a grind that started in October and ends in March... six months for punishing pumping for prizes, riding bicycles, trains, automobiles and airplanes over the six-day circuit... New York to Cleveland to Chicago to Canada... with only a few days' rest between starts. It is the most gruesome race of all years ago competing now... Iron Reggie McNamara is one... Dave Lands is another... youngsters keep coming on to take the places of fading stars.

Greatest of All
McNamara and Lands can remember well one of the greatest six-day grinds of all time... won by Goulet and Grenda 10 years ago in old Madison Square Garden... won in the last furious minute of frenzied action by a team that refused to lose... a team that made this its farewell gesture to the sport that burns up bodies. Goulet and Grenda never would win again... but they would win this!

Dave Lands was one of the youngsters of the racket then... he was teamed with Sammy Gastman, a little New York Jew... as the field came up to the last hour of the sixth day, Gastman and Lands stole a lap on the field... though the veterans Goulet and Grenda were ahead on points, that lap meant victory for the young team... it was too much to expect from the racked bodies of the Frenchman, Goulet, and his companion, big Tasmanian Grenda, that they should make up that lap after the horrible siege they had been through.

But, 15 minutes before the final gun, a roar went up from the packed house: "There goes Goulet!"... and there he did go, tired legs twinkling, rubber tires singing beneath him as he whirled... Grenda caught the clew and whipped up his wheel... Goulet roared up to him, gave him the shove and away he went while Goulet coasted and fought to pack a breath of air into his blazing lungs.

It was the last roundup, and the worst. But Grenda would not fail... he drove madly after the tail-enders of the pack... found after round five years old. I want you to bring me a new doll, with curly hair, and that has lots of dresses. Also bring me a little set of dishes, fruits and candy. I'll be a good little girl and go to bed early. Famed British General Was Glorious Even in His Death
BY BRUCE CATTON
 American readers may find "Marlborough: His Life and Times" by Winston Churchill, a too-detailed account of the career of a man who is not, for most of us, much more than a vaguely familiar name.

Nevertheless, the man is worth reading about. He commanded England's armies during a period—the earliest years of the 18th century—which was strikingly like the World War in the number of contestants involved, the extent and bitterness of the conflict, and the exhaustion which all parties suffered.

He was victorious in every battle and in every campaign, and he did about as much as any man to establish the enduring solidity of the British Empire.

Mr. Churchill, in the two volumes of the biography which now are available, carries Marlborough through the early part of his career, and up to the beginning of the war of the Spanish Succession in 1702, and he is concerned chiefly with an attempt to clear his hero's name of some of the unkind things which historians have had to say about him.

This attempted vindication seems to have been necessary; Marlborough, for all his greatness, needs defending here and there.

A penniless page in the court of Charles II, he got his start by shining up to the king's mistress, managing both to avoid being caught by the king and to get from the lady enough money to finance his military career. He became a trusted executive of James II after Charles died, coolly betrayed James to William of Orange, and then continued to negotiate with James after William had come to the throne.

As an expert at playing both ends against the middle, he can stand a bit of whitewash. Mr. Churchill applies it with loving care.

The two volumes give an enlightening and readable picture of English life in the troubled and eventful restoration period. Incidentally, if in your reading of romantic novels you have been puzzled by "Jacobite conspiracy" and have wondered what it was all about, these books will tell you. They are published by Scribner's, at $6.
